Brown Earth Church 2 mi. east of Stockholm on Hwy. 20, 1 mi. north, 1/4 mi. west

The Brown Earth Church or "Old Indian Church" near Stockholm, SD was built in 1877 by Sisseton and Wahpeton Indians. It was first served by the Rev. Daniel Renville, a Presbyterian missionary of French-Indian lineage. It is believed to have been the first church erected in Grant County, Dakota Territory. Rev. Renville and his wife extended many courtesies to white settlers. After the settlement was abandoned, relatives would come from Flandreau to care for the church and cemetery.

In 1901 it was purchased by Swedish Christians from Strandburg and served settlers until 1905 from Stockholm and Strandburg. Over the years the Stockholm-Strandburg Legion Post maintained the church and grounds. The Grant County Historical Society now owns and maintains the property.

Troy Stagecoach House 3 1/2 mi. south - 3 1/2 mi. west of Stockholm, SD

In February 1880, the homestead of John Potter in what was later Troy Township was designated a US Post Office on the stagecoach route between Big Stone City and Watertown. It operated for 9 years.

Grant County

Milbank Museums

Open Sundays 2-5 p.m.

Memorial Day through Labor Day

Private appointments and group tours available during the week.

Contact:

Sharon Steege (605) 432-9332

Agriculture Museum

Stockholm, South Dakota Keys to museums are available at Alice's Resturant, Main Street, Stockholm or Marge Nowick (605)676-2404

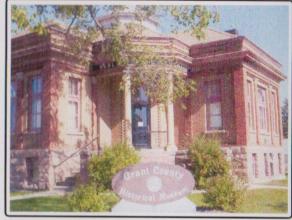

Brown Earth Indian Church - 2 mi. E. of Stockholm on Hwy. 20, 1 mi. N., 1/4 mi. W.

Troy Stagecoach House - 3 1/2 mi. S. and 3 1/2 mi. W. of Stockholm

Grant County Historical Society
P.O. Box 201
Milbank, South Dakota 57252
Phone: 605-432-2351 or 432-9332
Email: ssteeg65@itctel.com

Website: GrantCountySDHistory.com

Grant County Historical Society

Grant County Museum Third Avenue & Third Street Milbank, South Dakota

Erected by Andrew Carnegie in 1906 and known as the Milbank Carnegie Library until 1979 when the Grant County Library was built, the building was leased by the Grant County Historical Society in 1982. It is on the National Register of Historic Buildings.

The museum contains artifacts from cities, towns, churches, schools, military, and businesses in Grant County.

Adjacent buildings are the Historical House and Country School.

~See back for hours and contacts - all museums ~

The Historical House S. Fourth Street & Third Avenue Milbank, South Dakota

Built in the late 1800's as a church and then converted to a home in the early 1900's, the Historical House is furnished to depict lifestyles of the early 1900's era complete with furniture, wallcoverings, clothing worn, and utensils used at that time.

The cookstove pictured is an example of the detail given to the kitchen and pantry including an icebox. On the back porch are the washing facilities with the old washtubs, wringer, scubboard, and copper boiler on the stove for heating water.

Amsden Country School On Third Avenue next to Historical House in Milbank

The Amsden School or Madison #2 was built in 1882 on land donated by C. S. Amsden southwest of Milbank. After closing in 1966, the building and some of the furnishings and bell were purchased and moved to Milbank for historical purposes.

If you attended a country school, you will most likely recall sharing a desk with a classmate or warming lunches on the potbelly stove.

Students find this old school very interesting as compared to present-day schools.

Agriculture Museum Stockholm, South Dakota

Founded in 1989, the Agriculture Museum contains an outstanding collection of machinery, tools and vehicles used for farming by pioneers. It also includes an early-day depot, farm repair shop, country kitchen with original furnishings and a linotype printsetter. Adjoining on the grounds is an open-sided building with early farm machinery.

Tractor Museum

The Tractor Museum was donated by Kenneth Borns of Coding-

Claim Shanty

ton Co. in 2002. It holds four of his tractors and others.

The Claim Shanty was built in 1879 by Lars Anderson in Vernon Township. It was moved to the museum in 1990.